Correspondence

2 Timothy 2:15 ¹⁵ Be diligent to present yourself approved to God, a worker who does not need to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth.

How do we rightly divide the word of truth?

Truth is not something that can be divided, so I believe this is a reference to the Scriptures as a whole. From what I know about Paul, the conflicts he encountered, and the things he wrote about, I would say the division he is referring to is between the Old and New Covenants.

The Old Covenant can be summarized as an agreement of obey the commands of God and He will bless you. The New Covenant can be summarized as receive the blessings of God and live your life with what He has given you. Another way to say this would be the difference between, “do and be blessed, or be blessed so you can now go and do.”

I have talked with a lot of people who thought the division was in their Bible on the page that says, New Testament, starting with the Gospels. The problem that has evolved from this view is that Jesus was teaching the Old Covenant, and also proclaiming the New Covenant that was about to go into effect. The New Covenant did not go into effect until after Jesus died and rose from the dead. Jesus was teaching the Old Covenant, and people think it is the New Covenant for several reasons. The most common reason is because they do not know the Old Covenant. The Messianic groups in general studied the Old Covenant well enough they came up with a new phrase to describe what Jesus was teaching. The new phrase they developed is, “The New Covenant is the renewed Old Covenant.” This effectively meant there is no distinction between the Old and New Covenants, law or grace. The grace of God became defined as God was gracious enough to give us His Law. This is a more direct and honest representation of what the majority of Christianity has been since Jesus arose from the dead.

The book of Acts, the letter Luke wrote to tell his friend Theophilus about the historical events after Jesus arose from the dead, describes the struggles of the early church to discover the implications of what Jesus did for the world. It was Acts chapter 11 when the church accepted a Gentile could be saved without first becoming a Jew. It was Acts chapter 15 when there was a discussion about whether or not a Gentile believer would have to live according to the Law of Moses or not. To them it was obvious a Jewish believer had to continue to live according to the Law. It was Acts chapter 21 when Paul and James had their last conversation in Jerusalem and James still asserted he had no idea what the differences were between the Old and New Covenants. When Paul wrote this to Timothy, it was in the context of these disagreements.

There are only a handful of differences between the church leaders in the world today, and the church in Jerusalem led by James. Today, baptism has replaced circumcision, and confession has replaced sacrificial offerings. Having spent enough time in both, I can testify the Jewish synagogues are not very different from the Christian churches. They have different traditions, sacraments, ceremonies, and vocabulary, but their relationship with God is similar. The relationship they have with God is completely one sided, because as far as I can tell, He is not participating in the relationship they want to have with Him. Just as the church in Jerusalem was not persecuted by the unbelieving Jews, so also the churches today are relatively ineffective and not significantly opposed by Satanic principalities and powers. The church in Jerusalem taught the people to be Jews and live by the Law, and the church today teaches people to live by the knowledge of good and evil according to the first sermon of the Devil in the Garden of Eden.

It is not possible to rightly divide the word of truth, the Scriptures, when you do not know the New Covenant and how it differs from the Old Covenant. It is not possible to even understand what it means, and this is well reflected in the abundance of explanations people have attempted to describe it. Explaining this has been my life work, and I am thankful the Lord has allowed me to be a part of what He is doing, and for the people who have embraced the New Covenant, and grown in a personal relationship with the Living God through the Lord Jesus.

Hope this helps,
Aaron
